

1882 Gold Certificates top FUN sale

The only Fr. 1215d $500 1882 Gold Certificate known to exist in private hands is expected to bring in excess of $2 million in Heritage Auctions' Florida United Numismatists Currency Signature Auction, Jan. 8-10, and Jan. 13 in Orlando, Fla. The sale is in conjunction with the Florida United Numismatists show at the Orange County Convention Center.

According to the auctioneer, the 1882 $500 comes from the estate of a turn-of-the-century banker and includes three other Gold Certificate rarities. The only other known 1882 Fr. 1215d $500 is in the Smithsonian.

The Heritage auction also includes an Fr. 379b $1,000 1890 Treasury Note, popularly referred to as the small-seal Grand Watermelon note, which is also expected to change hands for $2 million plus.

"I can speak for our staff when I say that preparing the January FUN auction has been a true career highlight," said Dustin Johnston, director of currency auctions at Heritage. "Just when we think we've seen it all, we turn up new notes. This auction surprised us with items that we assumed would never turn up in our lifetime or in the future. The odds of survival made their discovery highly unlikely."

Four exceeding rare 1882 Gold Certificates are expected to shine in Florida. The notes came from the estate of a turn-of-the-century banker. Included are a $500 Fr. 1215d, the only known specimen outside of the Smithsonian, and three $1,000s (Fr. 1218d, 1218e, and 1218f).

This year's event kicks off with a 200-lot Platinum Night Auction

25 riyals stars in recent auction

By Kerry Rodgers

The first week of December last saw Spink enjoy a successful end to its 2013 bank note auctions. Many of the 1,250 lots sold for well above estimate.

Top of the numismatic pops was a rare example of an issued Qatar & Dubai 25 riyals, P-4a. Spink's post-sale media release is quite elegant in understating the pre-sale attention this note received, noting that it "garnered significant interest."

Graded EF, it had no problem in realizing $51,254 (£31,200)—contrasting with the Standard Catalog of World Paper Money current catalogued price of $10,000 in uncirculated.

Second place was taken by a Banco de Espana specimen 5,000 pesetas drawn on Barcelona, June 11, 1938, P-92. This note is one of the great rarities of the Spanish series and it easily made $23,654 (£14,400) in good EF, falling just short of three times its estimate of £5,000-6,000.

Star of Spink's December sale: a Qatar & Dubai 25 riyals, P-4a, that realized $51,254 in EF.

As a Kiwi, I was delighted to see a New Zealand note doing exceedingly well. An Oct. 1, 1929, Bank of New Zealand specimen £100, P-S240s, in about UNC did treble its estimate by fetching $13,799 (£8,400).

DISTRICT OF ALASKA NATIONAL BANKNOTES

In 1867, William Seward, Secretary of State, argued vigorously for the purchase of Alaska, from Russia, at the perceived exorbitant price of two cents per acre or $7.2 Million. Americans quickly nicknamed the barren acquisition "Seward's Folly". Thirty years later, Seward was forgiven with the discovery of gold leading to the Klondike Gold Rush. As the importance and value of the land increased, so did tensions with neighboring Canada as pre-existing borders between Russia and Canada were unclear in several large sections. Rather than risk war, Charles Fairbanks, a Senator from Indiana, was appointed to resolve the border dispute in an amicable fashion—a feat he accomplished in 1898 with the majority of the disputed land becoming property of the United States. Between 1890 and 1900 the population of Alaska doubled to 64,000 because of the gold rush. The second largest city was settled in 1901 and named Fairbanks to honor the Senator's contribution to the District of Alaska. Four years later the First National Bank of Fairbanks was organized. Aside from great numismatic importance, this fiscal relic has direct ties to the Klondike Gold Rush, the unique status of Alaska as a District and as a Territory, William Seward, and Charles Fairbanks. Only fourteen examples available to collectors and many tightly held. Fine..... $27.450

$100 NATIONAL BANKNOTES

03. $100 Original NBN, Fr. 454, Boston (MA), New England NB, Ch-603. First Charter Period One Hundred. A note of legendary proportions missing from all but the most advanced collections. Only two have sold publicly in the past ten years; we purchased the lower grade example (PCGS Fine 12, apparent) for $29,900 ensconced in our reference collection. This specimen is blessed with exceptional body, bright colors, rich red overprint, and vivid pen signatures. PCGS comments "small edge splits, minor restorations" which, while technically accurate, enhances this marvelous trophy. Evidently, the note carries the typical New England firm as the bank name would suggest. Last noted in 2002 at $17,250, when (understandably) graded AU. Huntoon examines 'eBay affect'

As I've mentioned here before, I collect material related to the Comstock Lode and the Bank of California. Recently an eBay offering of a draft signed by William C. Ralston piqued my interest. It wasn't new to the market, as it hailed from a major collection. But it was new to me and of interest, though I ultimately passed when it went above what I wanted to pay.

It comes to mind because of Peter Huntoon's column in this issue of BNR. He takes a detailed look at the "eBay affect" on the currency market, particularly in relation to nationals, and disputes the belief that a lot of new material is introduced through this venue.

"No one can deny that eBay plays an important role in the marketing of collectible currency," he writes. "My data simply reveal that it hasn't created a flood of virgin material from the weeds."

See p. 98 for Peter's interesting take on the hobby impact of this portion of the collectibles market.

READER RESPONSE

On p. 8 of the November 2013 issue of BNR, I noted a proposal for renumbering of small-size notes that in my opinion defies belief. In that commentary Bill Brandimore proposes that the suffix letters in catalogs for Federal Reserve Notes be changed from the system used for the past 100 years, i.e., A = Boston, B = New York, etc. Since everyone, including most especially the Federal government uses this system, any changes in the way Federal Reserve districts are numbered in catalogs would meet with outrage and would cause an enormous amount of confusion, if any new types of suffixes were to be used to any extent. In this column Mr. Brandimore states that everyone uses the Friedberg numbering system for small-size notes in their auction catalogs. Although Heritage and Stack's Bowers do use Friedberg numbers for small-size notes in their auction catalogs, Lyn Knight does not. My congratulations go to Lyn Knight.

When I published a revised version of Hessler's Comprehensive Catalog of U.S. Paper Money in 2006, one thing I insisted on was that all catalog numbers for small-size notes be dropped. I really don't see any reason for numbering small-size notes at all. Doesn't a Series 1933 $10 Silver Certificate fully describe this item?

For small-size notes, usually the denomination, the basic type, and the series describe the note. For FRNs and FRBNs the district is also quite necessary. In a few instances there are major different in back designs, and these need to be specified in those cases. These include the old back and new backs on $20 FRNs of Series 1934C, the wide and narrow backs on $1 SCs of 1935D, and the with motto or without motto types of $1 SCs of Series 1935G. Most recently there are colorized and non-colorized versions of the Series 2006 $5 FRNs.

I do feel that the Friedberg catalog many years ago did a good job of describing what should be and what should not be regarded as a major variety of small-size notes. Mule varieties should be noted in most catalogs only where both mule and non-mule varieties exist for a given type. For most collectors only $1, $5 and $10 SCs, $2 and $5 USNs, and the $5 and $20 Hawaii are of much interest. For FRNs some varieties are possible among $5, $10 and $20 notes of Series 1934, 1934A, and 1934B, but the research on these is still far from complete. There are some rarities here, but the values assigned to most scarce mule varieties should be regarded as highly tentative.

For the $50 FRNs it has now been established that the "micro" back plates (check No. 162 or lower) were used until 18-subject plates began with Series 1950A. Thus all $50 FRNs of Series 1934A through 1950 are mules. For the $100 FRNs, some "macro" back plates (check No. 113 or higher) were used for printing some of the Series 1934A to 1950 notes, so a few non-mule notes do exist in some cases, but mule notes are very much the rule rather than the exception. The last thing we need is catalog numbers for imperfectly researched notes, or numbers for notes that do not exist.

For FRNs a few collectors do make a distinction between the so-called "light green" and "dark green" seals. For the 1928-type FRNs the distinction between the "forest green" and "apple or lime green" seals is quite sharp, but things are more gradual in Series 1934 or 1934A. The latter are usually described as having "dark green" seals, but the color is really a dull blue green. I have seen numerous notes whose seal colors are intermediate between yellow green and dull blue green.

As an example of what remains to be known let me mention the high denomination notes. There are 12 back check numbers for the $500 (all "micro"), and eight for the $1,000s (with 1-4 "micro" and 5-8 "macro"). Thus all Series 1934 $500s are non-mules, and all Series 1934A $500s are mules. Why should auction companies mention these, since the alternative forms are quite impossible? For $1,000s I have seen quite a few mule notes in Series 1934, but for Series 1934A mule notes (i.e., those with back numbers of 1-4 in this case) appear to be scarce. Do all 11 district varieties of Series 1934A $1,000s (none of this series exist for Dallas) exist in mule form as well as in normal form? I do not know the answer to this question, but does anyone else?

There are wide back and narrow back $5 and $10 varieties, but these require a magnifying glass to distinguish. Peter Huntoon and some of his associates have also come across minor differences on $20 notes (especially with regard to Series 1934D FRNs). Research on minor varieties in plates for FRNs is ongoing, and doubtless new (but increasing minor) varieties will turn up, but such items do not require separate catalog numbers.

Block designations, of course, are very important to many specialized collectors, but should they be given separate catalog numbers? In my opinion, most definitely not. Star notes are really a type of block varieties, but their special status makes them very interesting to most small-size collectors, and they are generally given separate listings in most catalogs.

Postage stamp book worth a look

As a youngster, in the late 1940s and early 1950s (before my paper route introduced me to coin collecting), I was fascinated by the engraving on the postage stamps on Christmas card envelopes that arrived at our house. No doubt this led to my later appreciation for the BEP engraving on currency, which was also on a larger format and easier to examine.

I suspect that many of you also were interested in postage stamps at one time or another. This leads me to recommend a book I recently enjoyed, A History of Britain in Thirty-Six Postage Stamps, by Chris West. It is an interesting insight into British history from the Victorian Penny Black era to the present time. West examines British postal history, economics, inventions, literature, World Wars I and II, along with evolving British culture and politics. We also get a British view of U.S. involvement in these events. It is thought provoking and informative.

Amusingly, I recognized a stamp/coin connection in the book between Queen Victoria and Queen Elizabeth II in the wry wit of a Victorian commenting on the Penny Black with a short poem reported in the book: "You may kiss our fair Queen, or her picture, that's clear/Or the gummy medallion will never adhere/You will not kiss her hand, you will readily find/But actually kiss little Vickey's behind." A Canadian wag in a much later generation has described the polar bear on the Canadian "Toonie" as the queen's bare behind.

I am also just back from the 58th annual Michigan State Numismatic Society convention held for the second time at the Macomb Community College Sports Arena in Warren, Mich. This Thanksgiving weekend event is right up there with Lion's football and the big Thanksgiving Day Parade in Detroit happenings.

There are pluses and minuses for the Warren location. A number of out-of-state dealers find the long distance from the airport and the lack of an adjoining hotel to be quite inconvenient. Dealers in attendance, however, found a great crowd of 300 or so at the ribbon cutting. The Friday attendance was pegged at almost 1,200 with similar attendance Saturday. Sunday was the rather usual slower paced day.

This was in the teeth of a recession in the Detroit area, which is still in evidence despite the automobile industry resurgence. Leon Thornton, a Missouri currency dealer, told me he thought the city of Warren's advertising the show on its water bills was an absolute stroke of genius, as it advertised the show to non-collectors, who might bring things to the show to sell and otherwise would never have learned of the show's existence. Leon said he had a nice show, buying notes and selling a nice assortment of world currency he had in his inventory.

I also found the comfortable-to-walk-on composition flooring to be a great alternative to the normal convention arena concrete flooring. Yet another positive was the affordable nature of the concession stands. Run by young college food service students, I found the food tasty and inexpensive.

Spirits were high in general and a number of informative educational presentations were well received on Saturday. Particularly interesting was Bret Irek's excellent program on collecting Canadian coins and currency. Bret illustrated his talk with numerous Canadian items from his collection. With Canada being directly south of downtown Detroit, there is always a nice supply of Canadian numismatics at the MSNS show.

Over the years I have also found the show to have a lot of currency on display as well. In fact, Bill Herzog, a long-time contributor to Michigan National Bank Note data, was the big exhibit winner with his "Michigan Upper Peninsula Town Notes" display, which took first place in the paper money class and won the Best In Show award, along with recognition as the best display by a Michigan Paper Money Collectors club member. Thus, Bill won several gold coins as well as a trip to the ANA Summer Seminar in Colorado Springs, Colo.

The awards breakfast was a pleasant affair, and I enjoyed my meal with some Canadian friends, including Paul Johnson and his family. Paul is the executive director of the Royal Canadian Numismatic Association as well as a long-time MSNS member. In all, there were 30 different exhibitors with more than 100 cases on display. Bret Irek, chief judge, and Frank Passic, exhibit chair, put a lot of work into the exhibits and they certainly deserve a heaping measure of gratitude for their enhancement of the show.

Among my other pleasures at the show was adding a $50 Fiji Queen Elizabeth II note to my Queen Elizabeth note collection. That completed my portraits for a mini set I was pursuing of all the Queen Elizabeth II portraits on each of the six Oceania region countries. This has greatly expanded my knowledge of geography and I recommend this as a side benefit of collecting world currency.

I also had a chance to visit with a number of dealer and collector friends in the Michigan area, including Keith and Sue Bauman of TNA associates, based in Franklin, Mich. I always enjoy their table, which includes friendly insults from Keith as well as Sue's beguiling artwork on U.S. currency themes. I also visited with Joe and Ann Peruski of Monroe Currency and Coins. During this visit, Joe and I enjoyed educating a young collector and his mother on the availability of Bank Note Reporter as an educational publication as well giving them tips on a few Internet sites they might want to check out.

In general, sales seemed brisk and dealers I talked with were mostly pleased with the show. If you haven't visited a state show in your area, give it some consideration. You'll find upcoming shows listed in the back of this publication.

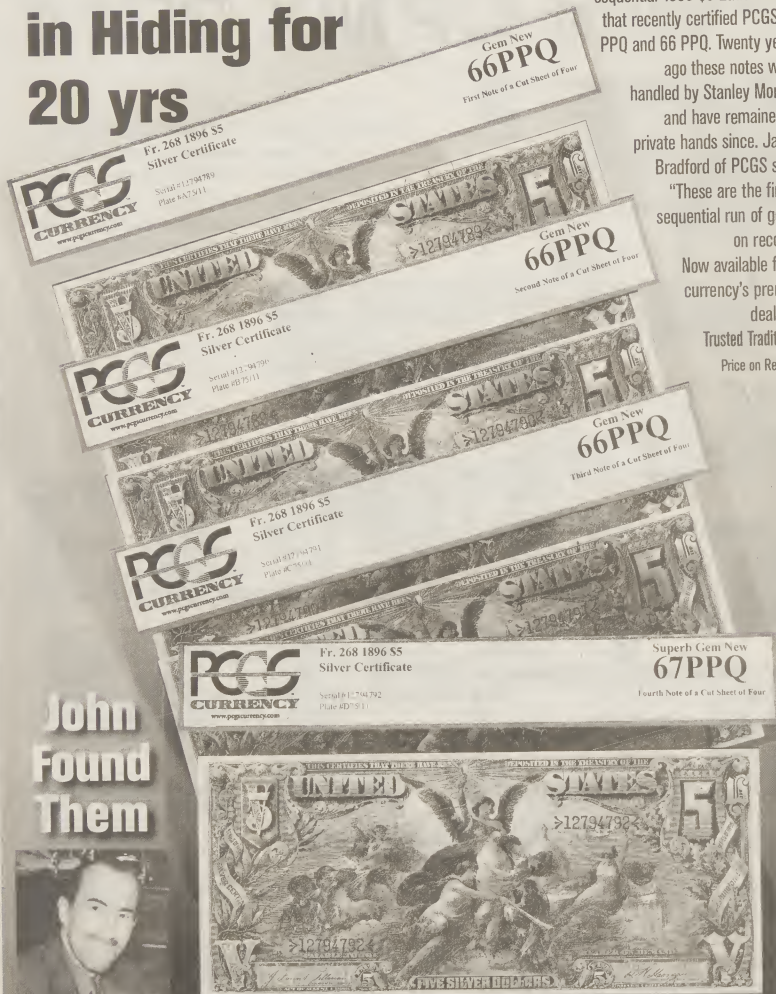

One show you might consider, if you live in the Midwest, is the Ontario Numismatic Association show in Windsor, Ontario, just across the river from Detroit. It is slated for April 4-6, 2014 at the Saint Clair Center.

My next travels will take me to the big Florida United Numismatists show in Orlando, Fla., Jan. 8-12. I'm looking forward to the Heritage auction and the huge population of dealers I can mine in search of paper treasures. I'll be at the Krause table and look forward to meeting you there. I might also add that the latest copy (32nd ed.) of Krause Publications' Standard Catalog of U.S. Paper Money is now out. If you can't find our book at your local bookstore, take a look at shopNumisMaster.com, where you'll find it along with a great selection of other currency and coin publications. I won't return home until about the middle of January, but after that I'll be happy to review your questions and comments at billbrandimore@charter.net.

GIRO! TEST CURRENCY: MAJOR DISCOVERY GROUP

As I prepare to release my long-promised awaited book, entitled "Giro! Test Currency: The First Discovery" (hopefully by the end of 2014 or soon after), a wider picture has emerged regarding the incidence of new discoveries. The likelihood of more (though the actual form they may take continues to be fabulously unpredictable), and the variety and number of the intriguing test pieces. Since the first Big Discovery of something like 56 Jefferson Heads back in 1999, with its associated development of the Rothberg numbering system, there have been maybe only 3 more very significant discoveries (date very approximate).

- 1) The "Missing Link" Washington Head 24.8 (aust sheet (2-sided) with (Mythology). An extra Grand August head of each of the 8 rows CA. 2003. later confirmed by 11 E.P. officials in Fort Worth to be the only Giro web sheet seen thus far.
- 2) The 2 Uniface Jefferson uncut sheets CA. 2008 maybe fresh from Germany, including 2 sheets. We're mainly advertising the Lion's Share of this group now, below. Of course the above list is quite incomplete, as it leaves out all the block Washington Uniface sheets, their corresponding sheets of backs, the 5 pieces of double-serial Jefferson T.5 BMS Net SW U, the unique summerback Reverse, various new individual pieces including other multiple-serial finds, not to mention all the magna sheets and associated errors. However, one overriding principle is the indisputable guide to the future. Just like Minnesota weather in Giro discoveries, the one thing you can predict is that you can't. You never know what's coming next! That having been said, if the future is anything like the past, judging from the tiny quantities in relative terms that have been shown up since 1999, I.e. maybe a few hundred examples exist today, of all Rothberg's combined excluding Magnas (of course), we're not about to see any thing close to a flooding of this market.

Relevant Color Features: POR following notes:

- 2-C = Weak Green, Greens = Grey-black presenting an Fr. 1218d $1,000 1882 Gold Certificate. Referred to as a "Large Brown Spiked Seal" note, the specimen is one of four known, with two in private hands. Prior to the discovery, only three examples were known to exist. Heritage estimates it will sell for more than $1 million.

A second 1882 Gold Certificate, an Fr. 1218e $1,000 note, is one of four known and likely unique in private hands. According to the auctioneer, the appearance of the note raises the census from three to four, with two of the three previously known notes residing in the Federal Reserve Bank of San Francisco and in the Federal Reserve Bank of Chicago. "The piece offers bright white paper and fresh ink colors on both sides, which has set its pre-auction estimate at $1+ million."

An Fr. 1202a $100 1882 Gold Certificate is called a unique discovery and likely the only one of its kind in collectors' hands. "The unique small brown seal, triple signature $100 has the appearance, color, and eye appeal of a high end extra fine note and as such is expected to sell for $700,000."

A unique Fr. 11a $20 1861 Demand Note dates to a period when such notes were hand-signed by Treasury clerks for the responsible government officials. The clerks added the words "for the" following their signatures, affixed above "Register of the Treasury" and "Treasurer of the United States." Specimens with hand-written "for the" are extremely rare and this one is thought to be worth $600,000 or above.

Among highly anticipated lots is an Fr. 377 $100 1890 Treasury Note, popularly referred to as a "Baby Watermelon Note." This specimen is one of just 35 examples known to exist and is expected to break $250,000.

Platinum night also features a 1969A serial No. 00000000 $1 Federal Reserve Note. "The note tells a story of how these pieces were numbered at the Bureau of Engraving and Printing, but in this case, it may be the only known example to feature the solid zero serial number to appear at auction."

National Bank Note discoveries are also of significance, including a Series 1902 note from south San Francisco, which is said to be the first time California collectors have seen a note from this locale, "one of the last highly coveted and previously unknown locations from the state." It carries a pre-auction estimate of $25,000-$35,000.

From Mississippi, a Serial No. 1 Red Seal $5 from Clarksdale is another unlikely survivor from a previously unknown bank. "To date, just one other Serial Number 1 Red Seal has been offered at auction from the state, making it a rarity that will appeal to more than just Mississippi collectors." It's estimated at $30,000-$50,000.

A $1,000 "Grand Watermelon" note is expected to sell in excess of $2 million.

Designer-signed FRN notes to cross block

A group of $20, $50 and $100 Federal Reserve Notes signed by principal designers, ranging from the portrait engraver to the letter/script engraver, is expected to sell for more than $4,000 as they lead the offering of former Bureau of Engraving and Printing chief bank note designer Jack Ruther's private collection crossing the auction block during Heritage Auctions' Florida United Numismatists Currency Signature Auction, Jan. 8-10, and Jan. 13 in Orlando, Fla.

"It's certainly one of the most unique and historically important collections we've ever handled," said Dustin Johnston, director of currency auctions at Heritage. "Mr. Ruther trusts us with a very important keepsake for future generations and we fully expect collectors will appreciate this opportunity."

Ruther, the long-time chief bank note designer for the BEP, supervised the BEP's design team and was responsible for the most major design changes on U.S. currency since 1929. According to the auctioneer, "Although [Ruther's] currency redesign project was first initiated in the 1980s, the serious work began in 1992, when the Treasury Department authorized the redesign of all currency above the $5 note. Final approval of the New Currency Design prepared by Ruther came in 1995 and the new notes, colloquially dubbed the 'Big Head' series in honor of the revised portraits, debuted in 1996. Attention then turned to the modification of the $5 and $10 denominations. Ruther was again the designer for these notes, the first of which carried the Series 1999 designation."

Among the courtesy autographed notes is a so-called "Big Head" example of the 1996 FRN $50.

Ruther's 30-year career included being called upon to design what became known as the Next Generation Currency, which debuted with the Series 2004 notes. In addition to added new anti-counterfeiting devices, the Series 2004 notes were the first in a century to feature a multi-color design on both the front and back.

A group of four Fr. 2089-E $20 2004 Federal Reserve Notes containing the signatures of designer V. Jack Ruther;

Thomas Hipschen, who engraved both the portrait as well as the back vignette; letter/script engraver John Smith, Jr.; and modeler William Krawczewicz is expected to bring more than $3,000. Two of the star note examples also bear the signature former BEP Director Thomas Ferguson.

All of the notes have been certified and graded by PCGS Currency, with each bearing the title, "From the Banknote Designer Collection."

Revisiting a coal country town

Here is a photo view of Anawalt, W.Va., circa 1967. The town was filled with businesses and fairly active. Only one or two buildings visible in this photo still stand in Anawalt today.

This building, still standing in Anawalt, housed the town hall and a couple businesses. It was vacant when I visited, and I made the incorrect assumption that it had housed the First National Bank of Anawalt.

Some years back, I wrote an article in a series on the ghostly towns and banks of southeastern West Virginia coal country. One of those towns was Anawalt, W.Va., a tiny town in the far southern section of McDowell County. It is only a few miles, as the crow flies, from the Virginia state line. At the time, I included photos of a structure I assumed was the bank. Now, many years later, I have found that I erred, and so to commemorate the recent addition of a lovely large-size Anawalt note to my collection, I have decided to revisit it and nearby Gary, W.Va., to make up for prior errors.

Anawalt is pretty much as far off the beaten path as is possible, even in the very rural and sparsely population section of West Virginia in which it sits. About as far south in McDowell County as one could be, it is just a couple miles from the Virginia state line. Anawalt has a crossroads where County Route 84 from Leckie to the northeast joins County Route 8, going south to

The old town hall building as it appeared when I visited Anawalt. It was badly damaged by flooding, but had been restored. It is now slated to be used as the town community center. It is the only substantial stone building left in Anawalt today.

A large-size Series of 1902 $20 note issued by the First National Bank of Anawalt, a new addition to the author's collection.

Jenkinjones.

It is named in honor of Col. Anawalt, who was then manager of Union Supply Co., a subsidiary of United States Steel Co.. Coal was the main reason for Anawalt's existence, and the U.S. Coal and Coke Co.'s No. 12 mine at Anawalt was for a long time the town's chief employer. With the decline of coal mining, Anawalt has faded quickly.

For national currency enthusiasts, Anawalt is remembered as the home of the First National Bank of Anawalt, which received charter 10392 in May 1913. The bank lasted until the Depression era, and was closed by the receiver in 1931. It was not a large bank, with a total circulation of $426,000, but for a town as remote as Anawalt, this was still a significant sum. Just shy of $25,000 was outstanding at the time the bank closed, of which $2,110 was in large-size notes.

Given that just six large and two small notes are reported, this bank remains a rather tough one to find. I was happy to recently add an attractive large-size $20 from Anawalt to my collection, made even more special due to the fact that I had visited the town and wandered its desolate streets.

Anawalt today is just a cluster of homes and vacant lots clinging to life. Total population, according to the 2010 census, was 226. When I visited Anawalt, the only active "industry" was a liquid nitrogen plant—there seemed to be little else in the way of commercial activity.

A photo located online showed Anawalt circa 1967, a town with many buildings clustered in the central part. Virtually all of these buildings are now gone, mostly due to the fact that Anawalt has been regularly ravaged by flooding of the Little Creek that runs through it. Today, on State Route 84, one will see a few crumbling wrecks and a couple old garages; the only substantial building in town (which I previously thought housed the national bank) was in a fact the old town hall and commercial block. The town managed to purchase this building after the most recent flood and has restored it to be the community center.

The First National Bank of Anawalt building, an impressive structure at the time, stood on a hill about Railroad Avenue on Church Street. I found a photo of the bank circa 1930—the bank building is long demolished and even the church visible behind it no longer stands, all victims of flooding and the ravages of time and economic collapse.

Short of some small-scale mining and the liquid nitrogen plant previously mentioned, there is nothing going on in Anawalt today. Heading down Jenkinjones Road one finds a scattering of inhabited homes and some older abandoned stone mercantile structures. Who can say why folks stay in such a forlorn and difficult location, but that is America for you.

Not far and a bit north of Anawalt is Gary. Gary was named after Judge E.H. Gary, chairman of United States Steel Corp. In 1902, the United States Steel Corp. completed one of the largest coal plants in the world at Gary, and soon afterward constructed two branch-line railroads connecting with the Norfolk & Western Railway in the Flat Top - Pocahontas Coal Field. U.S. Steel shut down its Gary Operations in 1986 and poverty and unemployment have plagued the area since. The population was just over 900 in the 2010 census.

Despite falling on hard times, Gary has the appearance of a neat and prosperous little community. Homes were in good condition and yards well attended. The town remains very similar in appearance to the one shown in the vintage postcard view, circa 1925. The Catholic church and old bank building are still the only imposing structures in town along with the old Gary High School, a structure whose large size made it clear how populated the area once was. The school is now abandoned and crumbling. The town itself is divided by the railroad tracks and modern county highway; the businesses in the foreground have been replaced by more modern convenience store and gas station.

Here is a vintage photo (circa 1930) of the First National Bank of Anawalt, which stood on Church Street above the town. It is no longer standing, nor is the church that is visible behind it, all victims of flooding and/or neglect.

Here is the old Gary National Bank building as it appears today in Gary, now being used as the Coal Diggin' Museum.

The Gary National Bank, charter 8333, opened in 1906 and served the bustling coal community for 25 years until liquidated in 1931. For a small town, this was a fairly large institution, with a total circulation of $882,000 over its lifespan. Just a handful of large notes (and no small) are reported. Some years back I had a Gary note, but this was before I was collecting West Virginia so it is no longer with me. I was able to locate a photo of a Gary note, though considerably lower grade than the one I once had.

After the liquidation of the bank, it was briefly reorganized and rechartered as the Gary National Bank in Gary, and received charter 13505, however, this was not meant to be, and this successor bank went into receivership in October 1931. No notes are known from this issuer whose total issue consisted of just over 1,000 sheets of small-size notes.

The old building is little changed from the 1920s photo, though today it houses the Coal Diggin' Museum. The museum was closed, but I found an unlocked door in the back. Inside was a host of memorabilia from Gary's early days, mostly relating to the mining operations, but also to the various high school sports teams that represented the town through the years. Surprisingly, despite the fact that the museum was inside the old bank (and the old vault was still there), there was little about the bank itself, and no National Bank Notes (or even photos of any) were on display.

I have included a photo of the old bank as it appears today. You can easily spot it in the vintage bird's eye view of the town, at the center of the photo, little changed.

Brazil's emergency notes overlooked

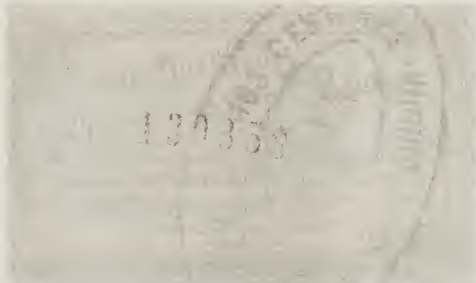

This is the first part of a two-part column by Neil Shafer covering the listings of emergency issues of Brazil. The second part is slated to appear in the February issue of Bank Note Reporter. — Editor.

For my December 2013 column I used as "Note of the Month" a ferry company ticket from Brazil denominated 500 reis, a lovely little piece printed by American Bank Note Co. It was also used to make change in the 1890s, at a time when a coin shortage existed. The explanatory text for that note was in reality a prelude to this month's discussion.

Brazil, the largest country of South America, has a very rich and varied history with regard to its issues of paper money. There are some excellent catalogs that cover the regular issues quite thoroughly. But one huge area of paper money from Brazil has had scant coverage for part of those emissions, and I dare say a fair number have been completely overlooked by the majority of collectors. I refer to those notes made for local circulation by municipalities, also including the wide variety of transportation tickets and coupons that were pressed into circulation as emergency small change during the 1890s.

Some may better understand the nature of these locally provided emergency small change notes if they were thought of as a kind of notgeld, a term well known as referring to the multitudes of notes both large and small that inundated Germany

(and to a lesser extent, Austria) in the post-World War 1 years. The German word translates to "emergency money," and that meaning would also apply to most of these kinds of issues from around the world. But the comparison stops right there. While the German and Austrian pieces are in the main still quite easily available on today's expanding world paper money market, many of the local and private issues from the rest of the world are often extremely scarce to very rare and very seldom if ever offered either for private sale or at public auction.

It appears that for some reason Brazil suffered from an acute shortage of circulating coinage during part of the 1890s.

OBsolete Notes

The Manhattan Silver Mining Company was financed by New York City interests (thus the name "Manhattan") and grew rapidly in size and influence following the Civil War. The notes offered here were intended to provide the convenience of paper money (light, portable) while carrying the backing of "hard" money - they were payable to the bearer in "Merchantable Silver" - silver coin or assayed silver ingots. They were to be issued by the Company Paymaster but this never happened - all known survivors are unissued remainders. Each note carries an imprinted US Internal Revenue Stamp (We were still paying for the Civil War). The notes offered here were rescued by numismatic legend John J Ford, Jr. We offer individual notes and sets of these classics. Please take advantage of the opportunity.

Some percentage of economic difficulty could possibly have been the result of political unrest. The Brazilian system of government had made a huge transition in 1889 when King Dom Pedro II left the throne and Brazil became a republic. For whatever reason, there was a widespread emission of transportation coupons and tickets, some of which had a printed value, which were pressed into circulation during the 1890s. Among numismatists who study such events and the resulting emissions, there is a steady increase in the realization that such emergency issues represent money of the people as opposed to the official government issues that are supposed to take care of such situations. In other words, these generally low value notes are true indicators of the people and their needs, and must be taken seriously in the scheme of things.

My strong interest in such local issues stems from precisely the ideas stated above. The notes are often very difficult to locate, seldom in high grade, and virtually ignored by the majority of collectors and dealers alike. The result is a double-edge sword; on the one side this neglect of these pieces means low demand, but it also means that even if noticed they are placed in the miscellaneous groupings and must be dug out, generally one or two at a time, without any kind of attribution or historical context. It makes for a truly challenging area of collecting, but the results are also very gratifying when a story is finally developed to help understand these notes and raise collector awareness.

Tucked away at the back of the catalog was an exceptional group of early Scottish bank notes. They were headed by a Royal Bank of Scotland 20 shillings dated Feb. 9, 1750, and bearing an engraved profile portrait of George III at the upper left. The bill had been made payable to "Archb. Cope." The grading of about F was better than average given the age of the note and, as such, the double estimate price of $11,828 (£7,200) was not unexpected.

Two Australian pre-Federation specimen bank notes stood out. A London Chartered Bank, £50 dated July 1, 1885, PS-, in about UNC took $6,699 (£4,080). And a Bank of South Australia, £20 of July 1, 1889, PS-, also in about UNC realized $6,946 (£4,230).

From Norway, a 1605 Thor Møhlen 25 rixdaler complete with Extremely rare Banco de Espana specimen 5,000 pesetas for issue from Barcelona, June 11, 1938, P-92. In good EF it made $23,654.

All Bank of New Zealand £100 notes are rare and this specimen of 1929, P-S240s, in about UNC, went for an effortless $13,799.

both counterfoils and all seals intact realized $8,670 (£5,280) in EF, while two high-grade Norges Bank 1865-1877 specimens, a five specidaler P48s, and a 10 specidaler P49s, made $7,486 (£4,560) and $8,276 (£5,040), respectively.

Among prices paid in excess of $6,500, all but one came from the Middle East:

- Iran Bank Melli, 10,000 rials specimen, AH1317, P-38Cct, about UNC: $8,276 (£5,040);
- Iran Bank Melli, 10,000 rials specimen, AH1317, P-38Cct, about UNC: $10,246 (£6,240);
- Iran Bank Melli, 100 rials false color specimen, AH1316, P35B, UNC: $8,079 (£4,920);
- Iraq, one dinar specimen, July 1, 1931, P-3as, about UNC: $9,064 (£5,520);
- Iraq, five dinars false color specimen, no date, P-30ct, about UNC: $6,699 (£4,080);
- Iraq, 10 dinars false color specimen ND, P-36ct, about UNC: $7,487 (£4,560);
- Israel Anglo-Palestine Bank, 500 mils to £10 set of four

Royal Bank of Scotland 20 shillings dated Feb. 9, 1750, took $11,828 in unusually good about F grade.

essays, Not in Pick, UNC: $12,808 (£7,800);

- Israel Anglo-Palestine Bank, £50 essay, cf. P-5, good EF: $6,896 (£4,200);
- Lebanon, 25 piastres, 1925, P-1, about UNC: $12,151 (£7,440);
- Lebanon, 10 livres specimen, April 1, 1939, P17s, UNC: $7,488 (£4,560);
- Straits Settlement, one dollar false color specimen, Jan. 1, 1925, P-9act, about UNC: $13,793 (£8,400);
- Syria, 50 livres, Aug. 1, 1942, P-47, good VF: $7,488 (£4,560);
- Syria, 100 livres, Aug. 1, 1942, P-48, F: $9,458 (£5,760).

An important aspect of the this and earlier sales in 2013 is the continued growth in the market for printers' archival essays and trials. Most offered in the present sale went for well above estimate.

Among several sleepers was an issued Bank of Libya 10 livres of Feb. 5, 1963, P-32. In good VF it galloped to $7,882 (£4,800) on a mere £600-800 estimate, in keeping with its SCWPM valuation. (Question: Has any reader seen an UNC example of the issued note?)

Full catalog details and prices realized can be found at the Spink website: www.spink.com. A 20 percent commission has been added to the hammer prices and is included in the amounts cited here. An exchange rate of 1 GBP = 1.642USD has been used to convert the British pound amounts.

Lyn Knight Currency Auctions presents The Neil Shafer Collection of Money of the People

"When a government cannot or will not supply enough money for normal business transactions, the people will step in and make their own. This is a collection of money of the people."

This collection has been over 60 years in the making and includes rare and undoubtedly unique pieces. We believe the hobby has matured enough to offer these pieces on a worldwide stage. This extensive collection is being offered in a special Father's Day session Sunday, June 15, 2014 at the Memphis IPMS.

This "money of the people" is overwhelmingly comprised of local and emergency issues made quickly to meet an urgent need. Many are available only in well used condition, and it is extremely fortunate that some exist at all. To our knowledge, there has never been an entire world paper money auction devoted to notes like this. Many of these items are believed to be so rare that it is extremely likely they will never again be offered.

The listing (see p. 30)

The only book that provides scanty coverage of a portion of these issues was compiled by Julius Meili, and is titled O Meio Circulante no Brazil, published in 1903. That reference has about 75 illustrations of these issues, some of which duplicate pieces in this listing. The group that follows includes all actual examples I have been able to locate.

The general years of issue for these pieces were the later 1890s. Several are dated; many have perforated edges like stamps. A number of them have stampings or stamped signatures on the back. Most are very scarce; some are true rarities. None can be considered at all common. Almost all of them are made of a thicker paper stock or cardboard. Local printers made the majority of these pieces, but on occasion the American Bank Note Co. was the source. Such instances are noted.

The various states of preservation found on these pieces vary from brand new to very heavily worn, sometimes to the point of illegibility. At times repairs have been made to keep them from coming apart—proof of their heavy use as change in circulation.

A good many of them have horse cars or other similar conveyance vehicles as the main design device. Some bear actual denominations (from 100 to 500 reis) but the majority are good for an adult ride (uma passagem) or a half fare ride (meia passagem). These probably circulated with a value of 200 and 100 reis, respectively.

When there is a denomination either printed or overprinted, the "passagem" designation is omitted from that listing.

Note of the Month

Neil Shafer

This unusual piece is from Para and I suppose could also have been used to make change during some business transaction. I did not include it in the above listing as it seems more like a receipt. The text at right translates to: "These tickets are being accepted and will be taken from the card at time of delivery to the conductor." A handwritten message on the back appears to discuss some sort of coupon shortage. If it is actually a simple receipt it is certainly an elaborate item for such usage. The name of the issuing company is the same as a number of smaller size pieces that are part of the listing. Does anyone have a more definitive idea about this item? If so, I'm listening.

Paper Money MARKET

Monthly U.S. Paper Money Price Guide

Large-size type notes will lead in 2014

By Bill Brandimore

As we enter the New Year, I'd like to offer some thoughts on where I think numismatic markets are heading in 2014. First, however, I should remind you that I'm not a financial advisor; I am a collector of over 60 years who is offering my opinions on what's hot and what's not. The collectible market seems to go through ups and downs in sort of 20- or 25-year cycles as in the two gold bull markets I've witnessed. Probably these cycles are more influenced by events than the passage of years. If you can read the signs you're going to be ahead of the game.

As an example, I thought gold was just too cheap at $360 an ounce so I purchased most of my gold type set at that time. Unfortunately, I thought it was too high at $600 and sold a lot of gold. One must remember that the bulls make money and the bears make money, but the pigs never make any money.

Currently, I believe large-size type will increase in value in 2014. I think long-term growth will be seen in Gem grades and in attractive circulated grades. I don't think super grades are the greatest values, especially modern-day examples. In fact

I was rather pleased to see a recent issue $100 bill in a 67 or 68 grade go for a very modest advancement over face value at auction. It shouldn't be that easy to pick winners. I think there is room for value growth in post-1928 and even post-1963 Federal Reserve Notes, especially stars, although those notes have been a bit soft recently.

World currency will continue to grow in popularity. It just offers too much not to increase: color, variety, educational value and a wide scope in price. When purchasing relatively new material, try to go for higher denominations. Many buyers get low denomination notes to save money, but it is the higher denominations that will offer the best growth in value.

Some of my personal favorites are U.S. Fractional as well as Continental and Colonial Currency. These notes remain flat in value, but I believe they will rise in value as collectors find large-size type just too expensive for their tastes.

Certainly U.S. Military Payment Certificates also offer considerable value. They are attractive and colorful. As the recent veteran population ages I think demand in this area will increase. We find a lot of lapsed collectors return to the hobby in their 40s and I think this will bode well for MPCs.

I also think Civil War-era Postal envelopes are worth a look. A big sale a few years back really drove prices up. I think now they have come back to earth a bit. These items are really scarce, but should now be down from $1,000 minimums to ranges currently beginning around $500 or so. In company with these envelopes, are Encased Postage, which have always appealed to stamp, coin and currency collectors. Look for decent examples such as the Ayer's varieties to be available in the $250 to $300 range. All in all, I think we're in for a good year.

Specialists who provide lower grade Blue Seal Silver Certificates in $1, $5 and $10 denominations as well as Red Seal Legal Tender $2 and $5 notes to television and other promoters advise me that the market is so saturated that low grade Red Seal $5s for example are commanding prices as low as $5.05 each and $1 SCs are bringing only $1.35. This might be a very low cost entry into currency collecting. Give a few of these notes to a novice and you won't be out much, but you might recruit a new collector to the hobby.

Introduction

Welcome to the 2014 Coin Show & Auction Guide. This special supplement to Numismatic News, World Coin News and Bank Note Reporter features the hobby's most complete listing of coin shows and auction firms for the coming year.

The guide is divided into three separate sections. First, the Auction Guide pages provide an alphabetical listing of auction firms. Next, the Show Guide section provides geographical details about numismatic shows scheduled for the year.

Finally, for a chronological listing of coin shows, turn to the Showdex section.

Sponsors seeking to establish coin show schedules are encouraged to use the Numismatic News Hotline service to report their shows.

The latest pertinent reported schedule information in a given area, months or even years in advance can be reviewed with callers any weekday from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. (CST).

The Hotline number is (715) 445-2214; ask for extension 13496 or the numismatic show directory manager.

WHO AM I?

Professional Numismatic Dealer and Consultant for Over 45 Years

WHAT HAVE I DONE?

Visit our Web site at www.juliancoin.com or visit us at eBay Id:
juliancoin

I have handled, developed and sold many of the finest rare coin collections (Colonials through Modern Issues) in the country including:

- Rare Colonial issues including several 1792 issues
- Assemblage of specialized collections of all early U.S. coins by die variety
- Simultaneous ownership and subsequent sale of two high quality 1838-O 50¢
- Assisted in the completion of the finest collection of Double Eagles ever assembled including the 1927-D
- Sale of the Wilkinson Gold Pattern Collection in 1973 and later bought and sold individual pieces including the unique 1907 Indian Head $20, and the 1872 6-piece Amazonian Set and 1874 Bickford $10
- A bourse dealer at hundreds of local, regional and national coin shows and conventions.
- Participation at every major U.S. auction held since 1968 representing as many as 25 auction bidders at the same time
- Consultation to corporations, dealers, and collectors in order to develop, build and expand collections as well as being instrumental in the promotion of the numismatic hobby
- Recipient of the Lifetime Achievement Award from the Professional Numismatic Guild

WHAT CAN I DO FOR YOU?

With total confidentiality, I will tailor my services to fit your needs, and:

- Assist in the formation and location of any U.S. coin and currency collection
- Counsel collectors, dealers and corporations on any aspect of the numismatic business of hobby
- Act as personal representative for any numismatic transaction at a maximum commission of 10%
- Appraise collections or individual pieces on an hourly basis
- Assist in ORDERLY disposition of current holdings at current values. PLEASE ASK FOR A COPY OF MY BROCHURE ON THIS SUBJECT.

Outstanding references available from collectors, investors, dealers and institutions from all regions of the country. Inquiries invited from qualified and serious individuals, businesses and institutions by letter or telephone. Or, stop by my table at any of the major shows. I have a table at all of them! If you are in the Washington, D.C. area, make sure you visit my shop: Bonanza Coins.

Show Guide

The Show Guide section provides geographic information about numismatic shows scheduled for 2014.

To look up a show quickly by date alone, or if you first need to find out where a particular show will be held, use the Showdex section beginning on Page A21.

Show dates and locations are sometimes changed at the last minute, so it's best to call the promoter or show site before traveling a long distance. Except as otherwise indicated by the name of a sponsoring organization, shows listed are commercially sponsored events. If no listing appears for a state, there are no shows in that state during the covered period.

Abbreviations used: A - admission charge; T - number of tables; () - number of primarily numismatic tables at a multi-hobby shows; F - table fee.

Is eBay a source for virgin Nationals?

eBay was founded on Labor Day 1995. The big question in numismatic circles is: Has eBay been responsible for bringing huge amounts of virgin numismatic material to market that otherwise would remain buried in the weeds?

Of specific concern to me is the eBay effect on the rate of National Bank Note discoveries.

Lee Lofthus's important article, "Are there more nationals to find?", in the December 2012 Bank Note Reporter seriously ignited interest in what remains in the weeds. His calculations indicate that depending on how you wish to cook the numbers, only between 10 and 25 percent of the outstanding nationals have been reported in the census maintained by the National Currency Foundation. This unambiguously tells us that there are hundreds of thousands more out in the weeds waiting to come in.

I have been collecting census data for Alaska, Arizona, New Mexico, Wyoming and large-size Territorials since the late 1960s. In 1989 I got smart and began storing these data annually, creating for us a snapshot of just where my various censuses stood on the last day of each year ever since.

I have been very diligent about recorded data. Fortunately notes that I track get good exposure, especially the Territorials, because they are sufficiently scarce people preferentially put them in auctions or otherwise expose them through ads. The result is that I don't miss many as they go by.

My 24 years of data bridge the launch of eBay, so if eBay has had a material impact on bringing virgin material to market, that effect should show up in my data.

I expected to find a rate increase as I set out to crunch my numbers.

I simply plotted the total number of reported notes by year from 1989 to the present. This provides a look at five data sets. Those plots are shown on Fig. 1.

For those of you who are mathematically inclined, the Alaska, Arizona, New Mexico and Wyoming data sets are totally independent of each other, which is good for statistical purposes.

The results are startling. All five plots are linear.

This reveals that the rate of discoveries has held constant for 24 years in all five data sets.

There is no eBay effect.

If there was an eBay effect, then there should be a rate increase, which would be manifested as a change in the slope of the curves with time. Specifically, the curves should have started to bend upward after 1995 and continued onward with a steeper trajectory. They don't.

So what do the data tell us?

No one can deny that eBay plays an important role in the marketing of collectible currency. My data simply reveal that it hasn't created a flood of virgin material from the weeds. This finding goes against conventional wisdom.

What I can say with confidence is that the existing numismatic market draws virgin nationals to it simply by virtue of being the market for such material. Once released from the weeds—however that occurs—the material heads our way regardless of the path it takes and we get to see it. That is the classic operation of any market, and our market is alive, well and well known.

Yes, eBay has caused a tectonic reorganization of the numismatic market in that all sorts of sellers flock to it to market their wares because they are assured of reaching a wide audience and most likely will realize a fair price. Furthermore, owing to the reach of eBay, uninformed sellers do not find themselves at much of a knowledge disadvantage because their material will find its level owing to the exposure it gets and the inherently competitive character of that venue. This saves them the bother of having to research what they are selling beyond finding the right niche in which to list it.

EBay provides many small players with an opportunity to cut out the middlemen in the form of the hometown coin dealers and vest pocket dealers who used to be the only game in town for most sellers of raw material. The result is that such middlemen are becoming an endangered species.

The fact is that eBay has simply caused a reorganization of how the same material is marketed, but it hasn't altered the net supply or caused virgin material to come onto market at a faster rate.

The fact is, the material that used to reside in coin shops or appear on bourse floors is the same material that is now available on eBay.

A similar reorganization of our market occurred with the advent of the formal numismatic auction firms. That sector has been under full steam since the mid-1970s. The numismatic marketplace that I knew in the 1960s consisted of a plethora of independent sellers of every imaginable stripe. That model has been largely

In Memory of Our Dear Friend

David S. Manley

(The Currency House, Inc)

1969 - 2013

"My deepest heartfelt condolences to Dave's wife and young boys. Dave was a wonderful father. He was always great with kids and it showed in his dedication to Volusia Youth Baseball. He was very respected, loved and looked up to by many. - In the world of currency, Dave was the consummate class act. I met Dave in 2001 and quickly realized I wanted to be associated with this guy. He was smart, a good negotiator and had a keen eye. The business relationship grew into a great friendship. Dave was extremely loyal and his word was gold. Sometimes he was tough but he was always fair. Dave always "had my back" and he treated me like a brother. Dave taught me trust. He taught me to care. Simply said, he made me a better person. Dave was my best friend. I will keep his memory alive forever." Marc Michaelsen

"It is with great sadness that I say goodbye to my friend Dave. He was one of the funniest, most charismatic individuals I had ever met, who will forever leave a lasting impression in my life. I will always smile when I think of the conversations I shared with Dave, and will miss his humor and laughter. God bless you, and may you rest in peace." Peter Treglia.

"44 and gone too soon, gone way too soon. You will be sorely missed, my currency brother and trusted friend forever." John Markis

"I judge not a man by how many years he has lived, but how he lived his years and the memories he has left us. Dave Manley left us way too soon but his indelible memories will remain with us forever. You were a devoted husband, a father, a son and a fellow numismatist. Rest in Peace my friend..." Jhon E Cash supplanted by the auction firms such as Heritage, Knight, Stack's Bowers. And eBay. The vest pocket dealers of yore have morphed into runners for the major auction houses.

The corporate types figured it out and have insinuated themselves into our game so they can skim a percentage of the flow. The transformation has been as radical as the demise of mom and pop cafes and emergence of the McDonalds. Like it or not, the corporate types created a more efficient marketplace.

The fact is that if you track notes, you will see a fluid flow of them as they slosh back and forth between traditional numismatic vendors, the formal numismatic

Fig. 2. This West Orange note was first brought into the numismatic market in 1970. It went back into the weeds in 1979. It cycled back to us in 2013 via eBay where it had the appearance of being a new discovery.

Proof of the Month

Peter Huntoon

Iowa is a state filled with small towns having great names. One of my favorites is Montezuma, located in Poweshiek County nine miles south of I80 midway between Des Moines and Iowa City. The town was named after the Aztec emperor of Mexico and is one of three First National Banks of Montezuma in the country, the other two being in Georgia and Indiana. A Cortez, Colo., bank had the title The Montezuma Valley National Bank as well. The modest-size Iowa bank was the only one of the four to issue Series of 1882 notes, and they came in $10s and $20s. I think you will agree that they are knockouts that could well be the centerpiece of any respectable collection. A dozen large-size notes are reported from the bank including one each of $10 and $20 Brown Backs. However, none of the 125 small-size notes that were issued are reported. To see a proof of that dream note you have always wanted contact peterhuntoon@embargmail.com.

auctions, and eBay.

Those who have material for sale use whatever form of the marketplace appeals to them at the moment to move their wares, but it is the same material no matter where it shows up.

The lament of the census taker is having to sift through all the so-called retracts on eBay to find a new hit. My estimate is that the ratio for notes on eBay runs about 15 previously reported notes for each virgin for the states I track.

Yes, of course, virgin material turns up on eBay, but that material is coming to us anyway. Some of it just gets short circuited to eBay first. The notes move toward the money, and our numismatic market is where the money is so sooner or later everyone figures that out so we get to see the notes. eBay is simply part of our market now.

The data on Fig. 1 zap another conventional wisdom; specifically, that virgin material is slowly drying up.

There has been no decline in the rate at which virgin material has appeared over the period of record. Intuitively we expect the rate at which virgin material gets released from a fixed pool to taper off as the bottom of the barrel is approached. Clearly that hasn't happened either.

For 24 years running there has been a steady increase in new material. This reveals that the weeds are still full of nationals.

What is the mix of the virgin nationals that keeps arriving? My experience is that it is the same as ever. That is, the same percentage of rare notes is coming along now as in the old days.

Similarly, the average grade of the new discoveries will not fall off. High grade pieces still appear.

If the trends continue—and there is no sign they won't—today's rarities are tomorrow's scarcities. Let me close this with an anecdote that demonstrates the operation and to a degree the fluidity of our marketplace. Back in the 1960s when I started learning about nationals, one of the first things I did was obtain a Friedberg catalog and search through the list of national banks for a bank from my birthplace, West Orange, N.J.

I was absolutely thrilled to discover the place had a bank, so I began seeking out dealers who might have one. In short order I learned of Tom Settle of Long Island and in 1965 wrote to him to ask if he had one. Miraculously he had two 1902 $10s, one of which I bought for $25. The bug had bitten seriously. I took the next logical step. I decided I had to have a small-size note from the bank.

Thus commenced a fruitless search that caused frustration for the next five years.

I couldn't find a dealer or collector who had even seen one, let alone had one for sale. And believe me, I contacted everyone in New Jersey as well as those in neighboring states.

I was living in Tucson at the time, but made periodic trips to New Jersey to visit my uncle, who lived in Clifton. For the fun of it one fine day in June 1970, he and I drove over to West Orange so I could have a look at the bank, at the time a branch of the National Newark and Essex Bank.

Once there I was compelled to go in to determine if anyone had ever seen any notes from the bank. The receptionist had no idea what I was talking about so she summoned the bank manager.

He said that someone had

Reader's Showcase

From Hearnout

Jess Lipka is justifiably proud of this stunning Red Seal from the Jorde North Dakota sale. It's attributes are obvious, high grade Red Seal, No. 1, neat town name. The town name is what truly sets the note apart. My first question was if the town was named for the game. The answer is yes, but second hand. It is named after the town of Rugby in Warwickshire, England. Rugby, England, is claimed to be the birthplace of Rugby football. Rugby, N.D., was one of several towns along the Great Northern Railroad between Devils Lake and Minot named after places in England. As for rarity, the note has everything going for it. The issuing bank was a minimally capitalized $6,250 issuer organized under the lenient terms of the Gold Standard Act of 1900 that operated for a little over eight years, going into receivership in 1909 before any 1902 Date Backs were sent. Its Red Seal emission was tiny consisting of only 310 sheets of $5s and 253 sheets of 10-10-10-20s over its lifetime. By the time it failed, its circulation already had turned over three times; that is, once every 2.8 years, which was typical. This means that two-thirds of the notes already had worn out, been redeemed and replaced. The bank ranks as one of North Dakota's smallest issuers. Is it any surprise this is the only reported note from the bank?

brought in a $20 the previous year and given it to him at face. If I was interested, he would dig it out of his safe deposit box and show it to me. In minutes I was looking at the very first small-size note I had ever heard about from the bank.

He explained that he had offered it to the son of the president who lived nearby, but the son showed no interest in it. Of course, I had to inquire if he would part with it. Then I had to come up with an 'offer—you know, not high enough to scare it back into the safe deposit box as some priceless heirloom, but not too low to cheat myself of landing it.

I finally blurted out what at the time was a high offer of $50. The fellow laughed, handed it to me and told me to give him $21 so he could recoup the interest he had tied up in it for the year that he owned it.

Later on I upgraded it. A problem I always had was that duplicates burned a hole in my pocket so I moved them out quickly. There wasn't much of a market for the piece when it became a duplicate in 1979. However, there was a very civic-minded kindly woman many years my senior whom I occasionally visited who was the last person I knew still living in my old neighborhood. She used to tell me news of people I once knew, so I gave the note to her. I was aware at the time that it was leaving numismatics.

A few years later before she died, she told me she gave it to a descendant of the president. For all I knew, it was the same guy who had passed on it when the banker had offered it to him years earlier. Regardless, it was firmly back in the weeds from whence it had come, and as a practical matter I probably could have been justified in erasing it from the N.J. census.

Currently there are 23 West Orange small notes in the census. They just keep comin' out.

Bob Hearn contacted me in July 2013 asking if I had seen the West Orange note that just appeared on eBay. He averred that it was probably going to be new to the census, although he hadn't checked yet.

You guessed it, there it was, my former note offered by Evergreen Coin in Lawrenceburg, Ind. It had no reserve, but by the time I saw it others had bid it up to about $50 with about a week to get to closing. I brought it home.

The last lead I had on it was in the 1980s, where it probably resided in the hands of an old line West Orange banking family far removed from numismatics. I'd love to know the details of its 30-year odyssey on its way into the inventory of the dealer in Lawrenceburg.

The amazing thing is that no one ever washed it during its travels. That in itself reveals that it resided most if not all that time out in the weeds.

My points? Nationals move to our market because ours is the market. If they detour out for a while, they will come back.

Once in our marketplace, items flow like water, changing hands many times with occasional appearances on eBay. eBay is every bit a part of our market as your favorite dealer or auction house.

The fellow who put the West Orange note up on eBay is an established numismatic dealer who is using eBay to reach as wide a market as possible.

This note had the look of a virgin because it came through eBay, but that was a misperception—the same misperception that leads people to think that eBay is responsible for bringing a flood of virgin material to market.

One dollar and one third of a dollar, Maryland, July 26, 1775 (photos above). One of the great Colonial rarities from this extremely tough omission. A wonderfully uniform note with 2 good sigs and nice centering for the issue. PMG VF-30. Reprinted splits, margins and corners. These were done so professionally, that you really have to use your imagination to find anything, if it's even there at all. Granted these do exist. Newmann nevertheless lists Fines (at $15,000.00) with VF @ $25,000.00. This example is actually very under priced at only $13,500.00.
